MARYLAND GAZETTE,

Containing the freſheſt Advices, Foreign and Domeſtic.

WEDNESDAY, November 4, 1747.

CONSTANTINOPLE, July 3.

EVERY thing is very quiet here ſince the renewal of the treaties betwe n the Porte and the courts of Vienna and Peterſburgh. This grand affair, which has been happily terminated in ſpight of all the efforts of ſome evil-minded people to make it miſcarry, fully proves the falſity of the reports which their adherents have ſpread a road. The peace concluded with Perſia is a further ſecurity of our tranquility. Shah Nadir's ambaſſador is expected here towards the end of next month; and nothing can be more magnificent than the Reception we are preparing for that Miniſter.

The plague begins already to be felt in this metropolis; and as the weather is exceſſive hot, we dread the conſequences. All the foreign miniſters are retired to their country houſes.

Cadix, July 4. On the 30th of laſt month the preſident of the contraction received an expreſs from Madrid, to late, that the gates which were ſhut were obliged to be opened for his admittance. This expreſs brought the king's orders for fitting out two fireſhips and two bomb veſſels which are in the bay; and for equipping with all the diſpatch imaginable, the men of war that are at Carthagena and Ferrol. He brought orders alſo for the French conſul at Malaga to provide 28,000 rations of bread, which is ſuppoſed to be for the uſe of the Breſt ſquadron that is ſhortly expected to be upon our coaſt; but in what ſervice that ſquadron or our ſhips are to be employed, remains an impenetrable ſecret till time ſhall reveal it.

Florence, July 15. 'Tis ſaid that a new treaty is concluded between the court of Vienna and that of Turin, whereby 'tis pretended that the former has yielded up to the King of Sardinia the reſt of the Pave an, and even the Principality of Gherra d' Adda.

Vienna, July 15. Count Schulemberg arrived yeſterday at this city from Italy, and to-day is gone to Schoonbrun, to make a report to their Imperial Majeſties, of all that paſſed in the Imperial army before Genoa.

From the LODNON GAZETTE.

Stockholm, July 31. On Tueſday laſt Baron Korff, the Ruſſian ambaſſador, being conducted and introduced with the uſual ceremonies, had an audience of his Swediſh majeſty, to whom his excellency deliver'd his letters of revocation as ambaſſador; and at the ſame time preſented new credentials from the empreſs of Ruſſia, appointing him her imperial majeſty's envoy extraordinary and miniſter plenipotentiary at this court. On Wedneſday laſt Dr. Blackwell, the Scotch phyſician, who had been ſeveral months in confinement here, was carried in a coach, under a ſtrong guard, from the priſon in town, to the uſual place of execution without the ſouth gate, where he was beheaded, purſuant to the ſentence pronounced upon him by the commiſſion appointed to try him. He behaved with great decency and calmneſs of mind.

Genoa, July 25. O. S. The Regular Troops that are here, to the Number of 10,000 by the Arrival of the French and Spaniards that had taken Refuge in Corſica, and are now landed at Porto Fino. Theſe Troops are no longer of Service, the City Gates being guarded by Militia, and there is Talk that the former will ſoon march to Savona, or elſewhere. In this Caſe we are told, the Tradeſmen and Domeſticks will be again armed, in order to occupy the principal Poſts without the City, which Prudence will not ſuffer us to neglect, after the Departure of thoſe Troops. This Precaution is by ſo much the more neceſſary, as we have no certain Advices concerning M. Belleiſle and the Infant, and the common Opinion is, that the French and Spaniards loſt more in the Affair at the Col d' Aſſiette than they are willing to own. The Auſtrians, who have moſt of them taken the Road of Piedmont, by Alexandria and Aſti, have left a ſtrong Garriſon at Gavi, and about 5000 Men at Novi, beſides a good many ſick and wounded. 'Tis ſaid, that the Noſe in Piedmont, 'tis ſaid, will attempt a new invaſion into Provence and Dauphiny, in Conjunction with the King of Sardinia's Troops: But if that ſhould be done, we depend upon a powerful Diverſion to be made by the Neapolitans.

We have conſulted the French Engineers, which are ſtill amongſt us, upon the Fortifications of the City, and they declared, that tho' they are ſufficient to reſiſt ſuch imperfect Attacks as were lately made againſt them, they would be incapable of holding out long againſt a Regular Siege. Theſe Engineers have drawn a new Plan for extending and augmenting the Works, which will coſt a vaſt Sum of Money to execute: But the Government, 'tis thought, will purſue it notwithſtanding, ſince nothing can be of ſo much Importance to us as our Security. The French Officers have received Letters from Nice, with Advice, that M. Belleiſle will paſs the Var again with all his Forces, in order to force a Paſſage into Lombardy by the Way of Ceva.

The Families which retired during the Blockade of this City, begin to return from Leghorn, Florence, Lucca, and other Places. But the Reception they meet with is very indifferent, and the Nobility in particular, who could leave their Country in Diſtreſs, notwithſtanding the Prohibitions of the Government, are treated with remarkable Coldneſs. Thoſe who are not yet returned, and have ſuffered the Time preſcribed to elapſe, will be proceeded againſt with the utmoſt Rigour. They will not only be obliged to pay the Fine of 4000 Golden Crowns which is fixed upon them, but they will be condemned to an arbitrary Penalty. Theſe Families are counted at 25, all of the Petty Council; on whom 2 Millions and 500,000 Livres will therefore be immediately raiſed, independant of what may be arbitrarily impoſed.

Leghorn, July 25, O. S. The Corſican malecontents, commanded by Col. Rivarola, maintain their ground at Terra Vecchia, which is a part of the town of Baſtia. They have alſo poſſeſſed themſelves of ſome other places in the iſland of Corſica.

Milan, July 28. O. S. Some lords of feifs of the empire, who confine upon the Genoeſe territories, have armed their ſubjects, and invaded the dominions of the republick by way of reprizal, the Genoeſe having pillaged their ſubjects. Theſe lords are ſupported by ſome of Gen. Nadaſti's corps.

Chamberry, Aug. 1. O. S. All the Spaniſh cavalry who were in quarters in this durchy, are gone from hence. They are marching towards Dauphiny, and, 'tis ſaid, that they are to join the army of the Infant Don Philip in the county of Nice. We hear that Marſhal Belleiſle, having found the entry into Piedmont impracticable on the ſide of Stura, has determin'd to return into the county of Nice, and to march towards Ceva, which lies between Savona and Meadovi, with a view of penetrating on that ſide into the dominions of the King of Sardinia.

Bruſſels, Aug. 9. O. S. The Marquis de Mirepois and the Duke de Richlieu have paſſed through this place from the army: the firſt is going to command in the place of the Chevalier Belliſle, and the ſecond to ſerve under the marſhal. The ſiege of Bergen-op-Zoom carries off a great number of people without advancing in proportion. The loſs of M. d'Orme, camp marſhal, who was kill'd there, is generally regretted, as he was one of the beſt engineers and miners the king ever had in his ſervice. 'Tis ſaid that Marſhal Saxe has been incognito at the camp of Count Lowendahl, in order to conſult with him the proper meaſures for the ſpeedy reduction of the place. The long continuance of the ſiege begins to tire out every body's patience.

Velt Marſhal Count Calemberg, in the ſervice of the Queen of Hungary, who had been confined in the caſtle of Vilvorden by the king's order, is ſet at liberty, upon condition that he ſhall never return within his majeſty's dominions. The enemy's huſſars continue to make incurſions in this neighbourhood.

Maeſtricht, Aug. 20. O. S. The army of the allies has made another motion, advancing ſtill nearer to Liege. The general quarters quarters of his Royal Highneſs the Duke of Cumberland is at Liche; and that of Marſhal Bathi ni at Eyſden. General Trips is ſtill in the neighbourhood of the Chartreuſe, and his troops continue to make incurſions with great ſucceſs.

The French army encamps at Harcourt, Flex, Slang, and Nederham, and extend beyond Tongres. The body of Count Clermont, prince of the blood, reaches as far as Haſſelt. The French entrench themſelves in all theſe places, which looks as if they deſigned to ſtay there ſome time.

One of the bridges which his Royal Highneſs the Duke of Cumberland had thrown over the river under this city, has been removed to Viſet. The communication with Holland by the Maeſe is at preſent quite free, ſo that ſeveral boats, laden with forage, proviſions, &c. have arrived from thence.

Oudenboſch, Auguſt 10. O. S. The body under the command of Gen. Baronial, frequently intercepts the convoys from Antwerp to the enemy's camp, and daily ſend hither many priſoners, and great booty. The garriſon of Bergen op Zoom ſtill continues to defend itſelf ſo well, that the enemy gains no ground without purchaſing it with the blood of their beſt officers and ſoldiers. Deſerters aſſure us, that they are preparing to make in a few days a general attack upon the works of the town, and upon fort rover.

Antwerp, Aug. 11. O. S. Great numbers of wounded are daily brought here from the ſiege of Bergen op Zoom, and ſeveral of our engineers are killed. In ſhort it may be ſaid, that few ſieges have proved more bloody than this.

Amſterdam, Aug. 12. O. S. The maſter of a ſhip arriv'd here reports, that he met off Cape Finiſterre an Engliſh man of war, and two privateers of the ſame nation, which had taken a Spaniſh ſhip, laden with gold and ſilver, and off Goodſtaart ten other Engliſh men of war, having with them two French men of war, two French India ſhips, and a ſhip from Martinico.

An Extract of a Letter from the HAGUE, dated Aug. 15.

"We are told that we ſhall have peace, but God knows when, a good one will ſcarcely be obtained until France be reduced to it by the progreſs of the arms of the allies upon her territories, until ſhe be obliged to give up the Low Countries, and to deſiſt from forming an eſtabliſhment for Don Philip; in ſhort, until ſhe renounces the devil and all his works, the pomps and vanities, &c.

As it ſeems the publick founds its hopes of peace upon ſome diſcourſe which the Engliſh General, Sir John Ligonier had at the king's quarters, and the diſtinguiſhed manner with which the king treated him, 'tis believed it will not be unacceptable or improper to relate the ſubſtance of ſome letters from the French army, wrote from one miniſter to another upon that ſubject.

The bravery and general character of Sir John Ligonier, intereſted themſelves ſo ſtrongly in his favour, as to have obtained him the eſteem of the king, and friendſhip of all the generals and lords who ſaw him during the ſhort time he was our priſoner. The king's miniſters had ſeveral conferences with him, which turn'd altogether upon the affairs of the times, and the preſent war. Marſhal de Noailles particularly ſaid to him, "Sir, I cannot help rejoicing, with all thoſe who ſincerely deſire peace, that the fate of arms has thrown you into the hands of the king, becauſe no body is more capable, nor I believe more ready than you are to lay a foundation for it. The king is really inclin'd to it, and will very willingly hearken to reaſonable terms; if your court is in the ſame good diſpoſition, the thing may be effected, without any longer truſting to the fate of arms, which, as you are ſenſible, has hitherto not been very favourable to the allies. You know the ſentiments of the court of London thereupon, and are acquainted with the intentions of his Royal Highneſs the Duke of Cumberland; you conſequently, will ſee you are with us, may have the honour of conducting ſo important an affair." To which ſpeech of Marſhal de Noailles, and to thoſe of the other miniſters, General Ligonier anſwer'd in the affirmative, and gave them the ſtrongeſt aſſurances of the good diſpoſitions of the King his maſter in regard to peace, adding, that as all the conferences which had hitherto been ſet on foot for that purpoſe, had been unſucceſsfully broken off, by reaſon of the preliminary difficulties, and the articles which were to be the baſis, not being ſettled; the re-eſtabliſhment therefore of a new congreſs, and even of a peace itſelf, depended almoſt entirely upon his moſt chriſtian majeſty. One may form a Judgment from what is above related, whether any thing eſſential has been done, and if there be any grounds to give out ſo emphatically as has been publiſh'd, that peace is as good as concluded."

Extract of a Letter from the HAGUE, dated Auguſt 15.

A foreign miniſter has receiv'd advice from Paris, importing in ſubſtance, that beſides the augmentation which the moſt chriſtian king has given orders to be made of ſome regiments, great diligence is uſed in raiſing 24000 men to be ſent to garriſon the ſtrong places, to the end that the old troops and the exercis'd militia may be drawn from thence, in order to be employ'd in the armies of his majeſty. The levy of the militia, which will be made after the harveſt, will amount, according to the returns made, to near 80,000, which will be equipp'd with arms and half cloathing, and exercis'd all the winter in military buſineſs.

Extract of a Letter from a foreign Miniſter at the Hague, dated Auguſt 22.

"The Moſt Chriſtian King is, 'tis ſaid, reſolv'd to ſee Bergen op Zoom in his poſſeſſion, even at the expence of 60,000 men. 'Tis pretended, that he has already loſt more than a fourth part of that number. Rotterdam, Amſterdam, and all Zealand, are full of French deſerters, who for the moſt part engage themſelves for the Indies, or on board the men of war. Count Lowendahl finding ſo much more trouble in taking this place than he expected, grows ſick of the undertaking, tho' he does make ſome ſmall advances. He is expecting the third renewal of his artillery, which has been render'd unſerviceable by that of the town, which is ſerv'd beyond all imagination, particularly by the Engliſh gunners, &c.

The journey which the Baron de Reiſchach, the Imperial miniſter here, has made to the grand army near Maeſtricht, was occaſion'd by ſome private diſpatches which this miniſter receiv'd from the court of Vienna, and upon which he conferr'd ſeveral days with his Royal Highneſs the Duke of Cumberland and Marſhal Bathiani. Notwithſtanding the endeavours that have been uſed to keep the ſubject of this meſſage a ſecret, we have been informed from good hands, that her imperial majeſty has ſent orders to Count Bathiani to act in ſubordination to the Duke of Cumberland, and to exactly conform himſelf to the meaſures and enterprizes which that Prince ſhall of himſelf think proper to enter upon.

It's aſſur'd, that his Excellency the Earl of Sandwich has not yet declared in form the ſubject of the commiſſion with which that ambaſſador is charged; however, it's known beforehand, that it is no leſs an undertaking than to cut the Gordian's knot. The courier which M. Ammon the miniſter from Pruſſia, has lately receiv'd, has, we are aſſur'd, brought propoſitions for a ſuſpenſion of arms, but upon certain conditions; concerning which that miniſter was both Friday and Saturday in conference with the deputies of the States General, and has preſented a memorial."

Extract of a Letter from Bergen op-Zoom, dated Auguſt 25, Four in the Morning.

The progreſs made by the French has obliged us for theſe two days paſt to barricade the principal ſtreets, and put all the ſluices and flood-gates in order, tho' we have orders not to open them till the laſt extremity, which ſeems near at hand; two of the principal ſtreets being now all in flames, beſides ſome croſs ſtreets and lanes, and conſequently the inhabitants in the greateſt confuſion. The firing on both ſides has been all this night and yeſterday more ſevere than ever, by which the French have at laſt diſabled moſt of our cannon. 'Tis hoped, however, the opening of the flood-gates will retard their progreſs for at leaſt ten days.

LONDON, Auguſt 7.

We hear that Capt. Hildeſly an old Officer in the Navy, is appointed an Admiral.

Auguſt 12. It was Yeſterday reported that the King of Portugal was dead.

We hear that moſt of the Fireſhips in His Majeſty's Navy are order'd to be converted into Sloops of War.

Auguſt 18. His Majeſty's Ship the Ambuſcade, Capt. Gwyn, has taken a French Privateer of 12 Guns, belonging to Cherberg, and carried her into Kinſale.

Laſt Friday Admiral Cotterell kiſs'd His Majeſty's Hand on that Promotion, and laſt Sunday kiſs'd the Princeſs Amelia's Hand on the ſame Occaſion.

Sir Peter Warren, Knight of the Bath, is ſet out for Bath, to drink the Waters for the Benefit of his Health.

Orders are given for the Payment of Meſſengers the Charges they have diſburſed for the Maintenance of the Evidences, and Rebel Priſoners; which we hear amounts to above 10,000l.

Auguſt 22. They continue to work extraordinary Hours in His Majeſty's Yards, in order to get the Ships ready that are to form the Channel Service.

Several

Several Regiments of Foot, now in England and Scotland, will embark in a few Days for Holland; Sixteen Transports being already taken up for that Purpose.

NEW-YORK, October 19.

By Capt. Woodside, who arrived here yesterday in 11 days from Providence, we have an account of a violent hurricane there on the 1st instant, in which all the vessels in that harbour, being 35 sail, were drove on shore, and many of them entirely lost, very few escaping without considerable loss: A privateer Half-Galley belonging to that Place, with about seventy hands on board, was entirely destroyed, and all the men drowned except 2 or 3 Negroes.

From Albany we learn, that the Forces posted at Saraghtoga abandoned that Fort about a Fortnight ago, and after setting it on fire, retreated with all the Cannon and Stores to Albany.

PHILADELPHIA, October 21.

By a private Person who arriv'd here last Night from New-York, we learn, that on Friday last arrived there a Vessel from Liverpool, in about 5 Weeks, who brings Advice, that there had been another Engagement between the Allied Army in Flanders, under the Command of his Royal Highness the Duke of Cumberland, and the French Army, wherein the Duke got the Victory, and killed the French 10,000 Men.---We are also informed that the Spanish Man of War that was engaged some time ago by the Warwick Man of War, as lately mentioned, is taken by some of Admiral Warren's Fleet, and reckoned the richest Ship taken this War.
